

Contents

Pre-existing psychic and psychiatric factors	1
The self-medication hypothesis for addictive disorders	3
The role of subjective effects: the self-selection hypothesis	4
Sensation-seeking behaviour and impairment of gratification: what is too little or too much?	6
Psychodynamic theories	7
Beyond psychodynamics, the neurobiology of addiction	9
Personality and Substance Use Disorder	15
Substance Use Disorder and pathological personality dimensions	17
Substance Use Disorder and Personality Disorders according to the Diagnostic and Statistic Manual of Mental Disorders	20
Antisocial Personality Disorder – APD	22
Borderline Personality Disorder - BPD	23
Comment	24
Affective Temperament and Substance Use Disorder	27
Affective Temperament (AT): Theoretical construct, assessment and nosographic placement	29
Affective Temperaments (ATs) in Heroin Use Disorder (HUD) and Alcohol Use Disorder (AUD) patients	33
Conclusions	43
Towards a psychopathology specific to Substance Use Disorder	45
Identifying a specific psychopathology of Heroin Use Disorder	47
Stability of the psychopathology specific to SUD. Independence from SUDs state-situations	62
Independence from treatment modality	62
Independence from active substance use	65
Independence from DD presence	67
Independence from substance typology (Heroin, Alcohol, Cocaine)	70
Correlations with clinical aspects of Heroin Use Disorder	74
Correlations with craving behaviours in Heroin Use Disorder patients	74

Correlations with the Post Traumatic Stress Disorder Spectrum	83
Ability to differentiate from psychopathology of other pathologie	90
Ability to differentiate Heroin Use Disorder from Major Depression patients	91
Ability to differentiate HUD from Chronic Psychotic patients	93
Ability to differentiate Heroin Use Disorder from Obese patients	95
Ability to discriminate HUD from Pathological Gambling patients	99
The therapeutic effects of heroin addiction treatment on the psychic structure of Heroin Use Disorder	107
References	121
Indice analitico	163

